About the program:

On June 27, 1991, the International Diabetes Federation (IDF) and World Health Organization (WHO) proclaimed the first World Diabetes Day in response to growing concerns about the escalating health threat posed by diabetes. Today, World Diabetes Day is celebrated worldwide on 14th November as an acknowledgement of the condition, symptoms, complications, treatment and resolve to find a cure for the disease. India has an estimated 77 million people (1 in 11 Indians) formally diagnosed with diabetes, which makes it the second most affected in the world, after China. According to a study report of 2014, about 46.7% of males and 39.6% of females reported that they knew about a condition called diabetes. Of the general population, 41.5% knew about a condition called diabetes. Thus awareness about diabetes is scarce in India and is extremely important to plan public health policies aimed at preventing and controlling diabetes. This underscores the need for conducting large scale diabetes awareness and education programs.

ABSTRACT

Abstract

The monstrous virus Covid-19 has shaken the whole world. It has brought uncertainty, fear, social distancing, economic instability, depression and so many crises in our life. This situation is hampering research around the world. In this connection this type of academic engagement is important and inevitable for our existence. Actually creation and dissemination of knowledge through research is one of the core functions of the higher learning institutions. Apart from generating new knowledge, the higher learning institutions have the responsibility of training the intellectual manpower required for all sectors of the society. Quality of manpower is the most important factor for producing good quality researches. With the passage of time, various institutions continue to carry their own important role and improved methods in improving the quality of research. But in the current Corona atmosphere, research work is being hampered due to various reasons. This has raised a concern among the academic community, social thinkers and policy makers. Amongst all other factors, training of the researchers is the most crucial one. We need to think about how young researchers can do research independently without relying on anyone. To improve the situation there is a need for providing training on research methodology to the young scholars. The present workshop is an endeavour in this direction.

Subject: Request for Linkages between Department of Zoology, Chakdaha College and the Department of Zoology, Ranaghat College (for the academic year 2022-2023 & 2023-2024)

Respected Sir,

I hope this letter finds you in good health and high spirits. I am writing to explore the possibility of establishing linkages between the departments of Zoology at our respective colleges. As the principal of Chakdaha College, I believe that fostering collaboration and academic partnerships can greatly benefit our students and faculties.

By establishing linkages between our departments of Zoology, we can create opportunities for our students and faculty members to engage in joint research projects, share academic resources, and participate in seminars, workshops, and conferences. Such collaborations would not only enhance the academic experience but also contribute to the overall growth and development of our institutions.

I suggest that we initiate this partnership by exploring the following areas of cooperation:

1. Faculty Exchange: We can facilitate short-term visits or exchanges of faculty members to promote sharing of expertise, teaching methodologies, and research experiences. This would provide our respective faculties with valuable exposure to different pedagogical approaches and research perspectives.
2. Student Exchange Programs: We can explore the possibility of student exchange programs, allowing students from our institutions to spend a semester or academic year studying at each other's campuses. This would provide them with a unique opportunity to experience different academic environments, cultures, and approaches to Zoology education.
3. Collaborative Research: Our departments can identify areas of mutual interest for collaborative research projects. Joint research initiatives could involve faculty members and students from both institutions, fostering interdisciplinary approaches and enhancing the quality and impact of our research outputs.
4. Guest Lectures and Workshops (online/offline/blended mode): We can organize guest lectures, seminars, and workshops where experts from our respective institutions can share their knowledge and insights on topics of relevance to the field of Zoology. Such events would provide our students with exposure to diverse perspectives and foster a spirit of intellectual inquiry.

I am open to discussing any additional ideas or suggestions you may have regarding this proposed collaboration.

I look forward to your response and the opportunity to further explore the potential of this collaboration. I am confident that together we can create a platform for academic excellence and contribute to the advancement of the field of Zoology.

Thank you for considering this proposal. I eagerly await your feedback and the possibility of working together for the benefit of our students and faculties.

With regards,

Sincerely yours,
